Hoodia is a new and powerful nutritional supplement for suppressing the appetite. This substance works by simply stopping the cravings for food and making you feel full after ingesting it. The Hoodia Gordonii cactus has been used for centuries by the Xhomani Sans Bushmen of southern Africa's Kalahari Desert, to suppress the appetite during long hunting trips. This impressive plant contains a special substance, which acts on the brain by sending a signal to tell the body that is it satisfied and does not need more food.

Directions: As a dietary supplement, take one to two capsules approximately one hour before each meal.
